THE OLD WISH—EVER NEW.

N presenting once more the customary Annual to our friends, we would reiterate our good wishes for a Happy New Year.

Momentous indeed have been the events of 1901. It has seen the close of the glorious reign of our beloved Queen Victoria, and the death of her daughter, the illustrious Empress Frederick. The world has been shocked by the cruel murder of the American President, and later we heard of the death of the ruler of Afghanistan. But in spite of all this, our thoughts turn to happier times and rejoicings.

The coronation of King Edward and his gracious consort, with its pageantry and festivity, will doubtless make the coming months memorable.

Our Recommendation to all is to SECURE, SOUND HEALTH,

so that every one may be able to participate in the expected rejoicings.

Build up your health by judiciously taking

WHELPTON'S VEGETABLE PURIFYING PILLS.

They will PURIFY THE BLOOD, CLEANSE THE STOMACH, and by restoring Tone and Vigour, will rejuvenate the whole System.

Try them and prove their efficacy in your own case.

Indigestion or Dyspepsia

has been described as the commonest ailment to which the human frame is subject, its symptoms and forms are so numerous that a full description of them would fill volumes. The most usual, however, are Headache, Sense of Fulness, Palpitation of the Heart, Nausea, Acidity, Faintings, Stabbing Pain in the Chest and between the Shoulders, especially after meals, Dizziness, Impaired Vision, with dancing spots always before the eyes, Wasting and General Debility and Anæmia. The cause may be bad teeth, defective mastication, errors of judgment in eating and drinking improper food, or perhaps it is the sequel to some previous illness, but whatever the cause the remedy is at hand—

WHELPTON'S
VEGETABLE
PURIFYING
PILLS,

taken as a dinner pill, one every day with your principal meal, will promote the flow of the gastric juice, stimulate the liver to proper action, and assist to remove those waste products whose presence in the body is undesirable.

IN 1805 it was thought to be "good form" for a girl to faint often. Robust health was considered indelicate, and a display of mirthful spirits immodest.

ACCORDING to careful estimates, three hours of close study wear the body more than a whole day of hard physical exertion.

"Messrs,
G. WHELPTON
AND SON,

"Gentlemen,—
My father has instructed me to inform you that he has now taken your Pills for over 40 years. He first saw an advertisement of yours, and at that time he was a great sufferer from Indigestion, which produced severe pain after eating meals, besides causing him to have lost all hope of ever getting better, as, previous to trying your Pills, he had spent pounds in what he had expected to be remedies—in fact, he became quite melancholy. Fortunately he resolved to give your Pills a trial, and acted according to the directions, which brought about a perfect change and absolutely cured him of his dread ailment.

"He is now over 70 years old and works at his trade. Should anyone doubt the accuracy of this statement they may call or write to this address and have the satisfaction of seeing and talking with, or a reply from, Wm. King, sen.—I remain, yours gratefully,

"W. KING,
"JUN."

Pimples,
Boils,

and Irritating Skin troubles are due to an Impure condition of the Blood. The skin, with its countless millions of pores from which the perspiration 'exudes, is an important purifier of the blood, and when its pores are in any way blocked, the Kidneys are often overworked and complications produced. The care of the skin is, therefore, essential to sound Health. Occasional doses of

WHELPTON'S

Skin

Disorders,

such as Eczema, are very often most stubborn and difficult to get rid of. Attention to general health, abstinence from very heating or highly seasoned foods, moderate use of alcohol, and care in living, combined with personal cleanliness, are essential to a cure. The skin can, however, be assisted to a healthy action by external applications, and no better can be found than

WHELPTON'S
HEALING
OINTMENT.

It relieves the itching, prevents the spread, and finally controls and reduces the complaint. It is antiseptic, cleansing, stimulating and astringent in its action. Chilblains are cured in a single night by its use. A specific for Eczema, Ringworm and most skin disorders.

Health Hints.

THE most frequent cause of HEADACHE is a disordered stomach or liver. There are many remedies which take away the pain without removing its cause. The relief is, therefore, only temporary: the headache is only a symptom and a warning of the actual complaint. To attain a permanent freedom from this distressing condition it is first necessary to set up a healthy action of the affected organs and restore their tone.

WHELPTON'S
VEGETABLE
PURIFYING PILLS,

being made from purely vegetable substances of a Tonic and stimulating nature, are admirably adapted to effect this purpose. They invigorate the whole system, and establish that harmony of action between the various organs that is essential for sound health. They are mild but effectual in their action, and may be safely taken by young and old.

The Family
Medicine Cupboard.

AMONG the minor ills to which we are all subject, Cuts, Burns, Scalds, and Bruises are perhaps the commonest. A clean cut will often heal by first intent, after washing and binding with a clean rag, but a burn or scald almost always gives more trouble. The first application should be a mixture of linseed oil and lime-water, known as carron oil.

Oil containing a small quantity of carbolic acid is good, as it also relieves the smarting. Afterwards a dressing will be required. A very thin layer of

WHELPTON'S
HEALING
OINTMENT,
on lint or linen, will soon promote a healing action, and in most cases the burn will heal without leaving a mark or scar. The Ointment, laid on to a bruise, removes the inflammation, and the discolouration disappears like magic. Always have it by you for an emergency. Don't wait till you meet with an accident, but send 13 stamps for a box AT ONCE to G. WHELPTON and SON, 3 & 4, Crane Court, Fleet St., London, E.C.

The Blood is the Life.

PURE blood implies sound health. The organs chiefly employed in the direct purification of the blood are the kidneys. When from any cause, such as cold or congestion, these organs fail in their action, the blood becomes impure, and headache and general weariness supervene. In such a case the blood is loaded with POISON. This poison is the waste product of work done by the muscles — not only such work as walking, lifting and carrying, etc., but the unconscious actions, such as breathing and the beating of the heart. The sense of weariness after a day's toil is largely due to this waste product, which is called urea, and is in great part extracted from the blood by the wonderful mechanism of the kidneys. In all cases of disorder of the kidneys,

WHELPTON'S
VEGETABLE
PURIFYING PILLS

may be taken with advantage. They relieve the congestion, and enable the kidneys to perform their functions fully, thus purifying the blood and restoring health and vigour.

Ladies

and children who sometimes require exceptionally gentle aperient medicine, will find

WHELPTON'S
VEGETABLE
STOMACH
PILLS

a very desirable medicine. They are much milder in their action than the Purifying Pills, and for that reason are sometimes preferred. They are recommended as a digestive pill to all who find they cannot properly assimilate their food. They also are highly tonic and aromatic. Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining these, send 13 stamps, specially naming the "Stomach Pills," to G. WHELPTON AND SON, 3 and 4, Crane Court, Fleet St., E.C., and they will be sent by return of post.

Constipation

is often treated as though it were in itself a disease. It is generally only a symptom of a debilitated condition of the digestive organs. Most aperients only give temporary relief, and require increasingly large doses to produce the desired effect. This is not the case with which, in addition to laxatives, contain highly tonic and stimulant ingredients, which restore tone and energy to the wearied organs, soon enabling them to act without assistance.

WHELPTON'S PILLS,

WHELPTON'S PILLS

are purely Vegetable, and contain no Mercury or other mineral substance whatever. They are suited to all, and the most delicate persons may take them equally with the more robust. Two or three pills taken every other night for a week, and repeated after the lapse of a week, will in most cases be found to effect a permanent cure.

A TESTIMONIAL.

"I find they do not leave any depression after taking, but on the contrary seem to give renewed energy."

TROOPER 19TH HUSSARS.

(Photo by Gregory & Co., 51, Strand, W.C.)

SOLDIERS OF THE EMPIRE.

2nd LIFE GUARDS.

THERE is no more popular spectacle in London than that presented by the stalwart troopers and officers of the Household Cavalry, to be seen any day on duty at Whitehall and elsewhere. The 2nd Life Guards, like their comrades of the First, wear silver helmets, steel cuirasses and scarlet tunics, and are distinguished by a blue cord on their pouch belts. Their standard is blue, whereas that of the First is crimson. The Life Guards began as a troop of horse, chiefly composed of Cavaliers, who followed the Second Charles into exile, and came back at the Restoration.

ROYAL HORSE GUARDS.

IN William the Third's reign the "Blues," as the Royal Horse Guards are familiarly styled now, were known as the "Oxford Blues," being then commanded by the Earl of Oxford. They do duty, turn and turn about with the red-coated and cloaked Life Guards in the service of the Sovereign. The Blues were at Dettingen with George the Second, with Wellington in the Peninsula and at "far-famed Waterloo," and in our own times have seen service in Egypt and at Tel-el-Kebir.

ROYAL IRISH FUSILIERS.

THE Royal Irish Fusiliers (87th Foot) are the "Old Fogs" in popular parlance, as derived from their war-cry "Faugh-a-Ballagh," i.e., "Clear the way." After gallantly capturing a French Eagle at Barrosa the regiment gained the nickname of the "Eagle Takers." The late lamented Queen Victoria in 1898 presented new colours to the 2nd Battalion, which will doubtless be carried with honour in the future as the old ones were in the past. The regimental roll of distinction is a long one, reaching right back to Monte Video. The Royal Irish Fusiliers (Princess Victoria's) wear scarlet tunics, with blue facings. They have fought splendidly in South Africa.

STH. AFRICAN LIGHT HORSE.

LIGHT horsemen have played a conspicuously useful part in the prolonged hostilities against the alert burgher soldiers of the Boer armies, and none of those raised at home or supplied by the Colonies have borne themselves with greater dash and daring than Loch's Contingent, which everywhere earned the highest praise. The Imperial Light Horse made a big mark at Elands Laagte in the autumn of 1899 when General White diverted the enemy and enabled General Yule to fall back on Ladysmith, circumventing the Boer attempt to "drive the British into the sea" and to capture Durban. Here it was that Captain Mullins and Captain Johnstone, both Light Horsemen, won the V.C. for valour in the face of the foe.

THE WELSH REGIMENT. THE CONNAUGHT RANGERS.

"GWELL angau na Chywilydd"—signifying in English "Better death than dishonour"—is the proud motto of the Welsh Regiment. It is the 1st Battalion of the old 41st or "Royal Invalids," in the grenadier company of which the Hon. Arther Wellesley—afterwards "the foremost captain of his time"—was once a subaltern. The "Royal Invalids" used to dress just as the Chelsea Pensioners do now, three cornered hat and all, but that was transformed into the regulation tunic with white facings common to English Regiments.

The Connaught Rangers is the only foot regiment in the Army with green facings. Its long record of glory dates back to Seringapatam.

1st INDIAN HORSE.

THE Central India Horse was raised in 1860 and 1861 for service ordinarily in Central India, but to be available on emergency for general employment. It consists of a couple of magnificent regiments, composed of Sikhs, Pathans, Rajputs, and Punjabi Mahomedans, each being about 600 strong, with a large staff of British and native officers, some of the latter conspicuous for their touching fidelity to the Imperial cause. These fine fellows are particular favourites with Earl Roberts, who proved their intrepidity in the Cabul and Candahar marches and elsewhere in "the gorgeous Orient." The regiments have on their colours Afghani stan 1879—80, and Candahar, 1880. Uniform drab, with facings of maroon.

SOLDIERS OF THE EMPIRE.

18th BENGAL LANCERS.

THE 18th Bengal Lancers were formerly the 2nd Mahratta Horse, raised in 1858. Their uniform is scarlet with blue facings. The 18th is a class squadron regiment, the official distribution being three squadrons of Punjabi Mahomedans and one squadron of Sikhs. A regiment of Bengal Cavalry consists of eight British officers, one medical officer, 17 native officers, and 608 non-commissioned officers and men. They are organised on the "Silladar" system, all the horses and everything carried by the men, with the exception of carbines and revolvers being the private property of the regiment. The 18th Bengal Lancers gained distinction in the Afghanistan expedition of 1879-80, and in the Zhob Valley expedition of 1900.

CANADIAN CONTINGENT.

"KHAKE" has been the only wear for field service since the South African campaign commenced, and it is not a little curious that it owes its origination to the gallant Colonials who have fought so well for the Empire—from Paardeberg (where the Canadian Contingent, artillery as well as infantry, mounted and on foot, won undying fame) right down to the latest engagements over the vast expanse of veldt and kopje. The scout cavalry of the Alberta Field Force marched some 800 miles on end through an almost Arctic country during the second Riel rising in Canada, and Captain Steele—since known as "Fighting Sam" of Strathcona's Horse—there successfully adopted a fatigue dress of brown canvas, instead of scarlet, for his men, to defeat the hawklike Indian eye.

1st ROYAL SCOTS.

THE oldest regiment in the world and the first Regiment of the Line in Britain is the Royal Scots, or Lothian Regiment, jocularly known as "Pontius Pilate's Body Guard." It claims descent from a brave band of Scotsmen that entered the service of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in 1625, and the regiment went in 1633 to France to help Henry IV. in his wars with the Leaguers. The blue faced scarlet tunic has been seen wherever there was battling to be done, from Blenheim to Taku and Peking, and always with glory.

NEW SOUTH WALES CAVALRY.

THE Duke of Cornwall and York has borne eloquent and grateful testimony in the Empire's name to the grand work done by the New South Wales Cavalry and the rest of the Australasian horse in many a trying march and stubborn engagement with the Boers. Trooper Tom Morris of the Lancers showed at Arundel what sterling stuff the New South Welshmen were made of when he picked up and saved his unhorsed comrade under a heavy fire, and the despatches of Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener have made frequent honourable mention since of the gallant deeds of the valiant "Cornstalks."

ROYAL HORSE ARTILLERY.

THE yellow-corded jackets of our Royal Regiment of Artillery—not unlike those of the Hussars—are known the world over, as are their white-plumed, scarlet-bagged black busbies. The regiment was formed at Woolwich in 1716 out of some old companies of artillery which had formed part of an army in the field since the days of "Bluff King Hal." They have been, as their mottoes declare, "everywhere where right and glory lead." The way in which they can bring up their guns at the gallop always wins wondering admiration.

19th HUSSARS.

THE 19th (Princess of Wales's Own) Hussars are blue uniformed, with white busby bags and plumes. The present regiment is most directly connected with the famous old 19th Light Dragoons of Indian history, in honour of whose dashing exploits during a service of over a quarter of a century in the East it bears the proud distinction "Assaye" and its accompanying badge of the Elephant. "Niagara" also appears on its colours in commemoration of the work the old regiment did in the war with the United States in 1812-14, and it gained new renown at Tel-el Kebir and Abu Klea.

CORONATION CUSTOMS & CEREMONIES.

THE Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey, with the sacred stone of Scone beneath its venerable seat, is perhaps the most interesting object in connection with the crowning of our Kings and Queens. Tradition avers that the stone was that on which Jacob pillowed his head when he dreamed of the angels. This, later chronicles tell, was obtained A.D. 513 by Tergius, a Scottish Prince, for his coronation, from the Irish Kings of Munster, who knew it as the "Stone of Destiny." Kenneth II. is supposed to have transferred it to Scone from Dunstaffnage. Edward I. removed the stone from Scone, and made a chair to fit it. Time after time the Scotsmen tried to get it back, but London would not part with the precious relic, and it was not until James I. of England and VI. of Scotland was seated on it at Westminster that the old saying :

"Wheresoe'er this stone be found There must Scotia's king be crowned " had verity again.

The King's Champion was the most picturesque personage associated with the Coronation pageant. There will be no Champion—as such—at the crowning of King Edward VII., but it is interesting to note that his Majesty has been presented with the famous coat of armour in which the Dymoke family for very many years figured at the coronation ceremonies of our monarchs. The first King's Champion called Dymoke was Sir John of that ilk, who officiated at Richard II.'s coronation in 1377. The valiant knight wedded Margaret, daughter of Thomas de Ludlow, who belonged to the Marmion family, and held the Lincolnshire manor of Scrivelsby. The Marmions claimed descent from the hereditary champions, the Dukes of Normandy, who are believed to have thrown down the gage for every English sovereign from the Conquest. Roger Marmion, at any rate, was acknowledged as King's Champion in Henry I.'s reign, but he had no opportunity of performing his quaint duties, though he held Scrivelsby and Tamworth upon that condition. It was the Champion's duty to ride into Westminster Hall at the commencement of the Coronation banquet, and three several times to challenge to combat any person who dared to dispute the Sovereign's right to reign.

Richly accoutred and heavily armed he flung down his gauntlet as soon as the herald announced the challenge. When the Champion took up the gauntlet the third time the King drank to him from a gold cup, which afterwards became the perquisite of this curious functionary.

The Court of Coronation Claims deals with all aspirations to special positions at the crowning, and sets aside many, though many are also allowed, as of right, to personages of lofty lineage. The Lord Great Chamberlain has certain important privileges and perquisites; formerly he claimed the King's clothes, besides his Majesty's bed, and the costly ewer and basin held by him for the Sovereign to wash his hands in before the banquet.

The Duke of Norfolk, as Hereditary Chief Butler and Earl Marshal, claims the best gold cup and cover at the great banquet; the Duke of Somerset has the right and privilege of carrying the orb; the Duke of Newcastle provides the spurs; the Earl of Errol, kinsman of the King, walks proudly in the procession as Lord High Constable of Scotland, with silver baton tipped with gold; the Marquis of Winchester—as premier Marquis, in succession to his gallant brother who fell at Magersfontein—carries the cap of maintenance; the Duke of Newcastle as Lord of the Manor of Worksop, does service as provider of the glove and supporter of the King's right-arm while carrying the sceptre; and there are many other quaint and dignified offices to perform which the aristocracy of the three kingdoms are jealous of conserving the rights of their ancestors in connection with.

A Pretty Coronation Custom was that last followed at the crowning of George IV., when a group of seven high-born "herb-women" were employed to strew the path of the King with fragrant flowers as the procession passed from Westminster Hall to the Abbey. These ladies—Society maidens of their day—were attired in gracefully flowered muslin and looked particularly charming, as may be seen from an extant official painting of the ceremony which has been much admired. If this pretty custom be revived next June, as is suggested, there will be dainty and well-graced aspirants for the post of "herb-women."

FUN FOR CHRISTMAS.

CONUNDRUMS.

WHAT is the difference between killed soldiers and repaired garments?—The former are dead men and the latter are mended (men dead).

WHAT river in Africa is a juicy fruit?—Orange.

IF I buy four cakes for a penny and give you one of them, why am I like a telescope?—I make a far thing present.

GIVE the reason why an oyster is the greatest paradox in nature.

He wears a beard without a chin, And never leaves his bed but to be tucked in.

WHY is a wainscotted room like a relieve?—There are no hangings in it.

THE riddle of riddles—it leaps and it skips—

'Tis seen in the eyes, and it cheats on the lips;

It seldom is found, though oftentimes read;

'Tis sometimes a feather, and now and then lead,

If it meets with its match, 'tis happily caught,

If money can buy it, 'tis not worth a groat.

Answer—The heart.

THE pith of a good anagram is that it should in some way relate to the meaning of the original word. Here are some excellent specimens:

Astronomers—No more stars or moon starers.

Impatient—Tim in a pet.

Punishment—Nine thumps.

Matrimony—Into my arm.

Revolution—To love ruin.

Sweetheart—There we sat.

Telegraphs—Great helps.

Parishioners—I hire parsons.

Radical reform—Rare mad frolic.

Presbyterian—Best in prayer.

Misanthrope—Spare him not.

Catalogue—Got as a clue.

Elegant—Neat leg.

IF a man met a crying pig, what animal would he call him?—Pork, you pine.

WHAT is that of which the common sort is the best?—Sense.

WHY is a postage stamp like an obstinate donkey?—Because when you lick it it sticks.

WHAT part of the face resembles a school-master?—The eyelid, because it always has a pupil under it.

WHEN do ladies carry fire?—When they have taper fingers.

WHY are handsome laundresses a sign of public rejoicing? They are belles wringing (bells ringing).

HOW do all fortunate whist players resemble monkeys?—They have odd tricks.

WHO were in possession of the first swarm of bees?—The Hivites.

ENOUGH for one, too much for two, and nothing at all for three?—A secret.

FROM five syllables take one, and no syllable will remain.—Monosyllable.

WHAT makes everybody sick but those who swallow it?—Flattery.

WHY is a tavern waiter like a race-horse?—Because he runs for the plate.

WHY are prize-fights called pitched battles?—Because they are by two men (bitumen).

WHY is the letter S like a furnace in a battery?—Because it makes hot shot.

WHY is a lover like a crow?—Because he has an attachment to carry on.

IN which month do ladies talk least?—February, because it is the shortest.

WHY is a cock-eye like a note of interrogation?—Because it is a queer eye.

WHERE was Humboldt going when he was thirty-nine years old?—In his 40th year.

WHICH is the most ancient of the trees?—The elder-tree.

WHAT was the longest day of Adam's life?—The day on which there was no eve
